

Emily Maxwell

Basic Information

Age: 18

Family Status: Oldest child with a younger brother and married parents.

Education: High school graduate from Bayville High School, Florida.

Interests: Writing, reading, literature, photography, and traveling.

Values

Emily values capturing and living in the moment. To do this, she takes pictures and records her experiences in her journal and blog. A family-oriented person, Emily mostly captures the moments with her family and friends. She is a curious person by nature and loves to travel and explore new places and meet new people. Emily is a driven, young woman, a bit of a perfectionist in anything she is involved in. She is also a Christian who is active in her church's youth group.

Experience

Emily loves to write. In high school, she was an active news reporter during all four years, writing up the latest events and sensations for her fellow students. In her spare time, Emily enjoys authoring stories and poetry and writing her personal thoughts in her journal as well as posting book reviews on her blog, Literature Haven.

Technology:

Emily has relatively moderate skills with technology. She frequently texts, emails, and Facebooks her family and friends to see how they are doing and if they want to hang out sometime. During her time as a high school reporter, Emily used email and Facebook to contact her editor and fellow reporters over which stories to write and when they were due. As an amateur photographer, Emily also posts many of her pictures on Instagram. In addition, she writes, edits, and maintains her blog.

Scenario

Emily has recently graduated from high school and is ready for the next step in higher education. She wants an appealing major at a Christian college. An explorer at heart, Emily does not want to attend a local community college or university; she wants to go out of state in hopes of meeting new people, visiting exciting places, and trying different experiences that is not native to Florida, like snow. All of these new places, people, and experiences would be recorded in her journal, on her blog, and on her Instagram account.

Emily has a rough idea of what sort of major and college she wants. She does not plan to major in anything that focuses on science, math, or blood. Being an author of books sounds too slow for her right now. She wants a job that is fast-paced and has different assignments each day. Emily also desires to sharpen her writing and reporting skills. Her teachers, friends, and parents suggest she pursue a career in journalism or something similar to that field.

As for the college, it must be out of state, have a good program for her major, holds strong Christian values, and have excellent professors in the major. Her youth pastor suggests Cedarville University, the university where he and his younger brother graduated from a few years ago. Emily has gotten many recommendations in her search for good Christian colleges. She decides to visit the Cedarville University's website.
